CAMPUS OF UNIVERSITAS 17 AGUSTUS 1945 (UNTAG)
SURABAYA, INDONESIA - SATURDAY, JULY 23, 2016

A PARALLEL EVENT AT THE PREPCOM-3 HABITAT III

Background

“Resilient urban development” is one out of three transformative commitments for sustainable urban development (together with sustainable and inclusive urban prosperity, and social inclusion and poverty eradication) in the Quito implementation plan for the New Urban Agenda. The keyword “resilience” has been mentioned eleven times in six different pages and two full articles in the revised zero draft of the declaration showing the importance of the concept in the upcoming global urban agenda.

Goals

INTRODUCE the concept of resilience as the capacity to recover quickly from shocks and stresses based on a robust approach to systems planning, implementation and continual assessment taking into account social and economic factors, not only environmental ones.

Objectives

- SHARE examples of resilient community planning and resources, which is
  - A human-centered approach to adaptation that may draw on technological assets (but not vice versa).
  - Beyond the conventional disaster response by putting resilience planning strategies and their implementation in a broader setting.
- PROVIDE a learning example such as a case study on a specific resilience challenge in particular geographical areas (e.g., USA, China, Indonesia).
- BUILD network with urban stakeholders and with other participating parties of Prep.Comm-3.
- ESTABLISH partnerships with local governments, professional associations and academic/research institutions on the topic, particularly in the Asia Pacific region.
